Case 2.1

Dave is pulled over for a motor vehicle violation in his local town in upstate New York. During the course of the motor vehicle stop the officer determines that Dave had relocated in to town from New Jersey six months prior to the stop. Although Dave has a valid New York state license his driving privileges in New Jersey are suspended and he has numerous outstanding motor vehicle warrants. Further inquiry reveals that Dave is a registered violent sexual offender in New Jersey with an extensive criminal history. A check of the local department data base reveals that Dave has not registered as a sexual offender with the local town or state since relocating to New York.

41. In the above scenario would Dave be required to register as sexual offender in New York for a previous conviction in New Jersey?

- a. No, under the Federalism doctrine each state is a sovereignty and the regulations of another state or federal government cannot be imposed on their residents.
- b. No because Dave has only been living in New York for six months and the law allows convicted sexual offenders up to a year to register when relocating from out of state.
- c. Yes under the federal of Violence Against Women Act (VAWA) 18 U.S.C.A. 2265 requires the equal recognition and enforcement of out of state orders of protection.
- d. Yes under the federal sexual offender registration and notification act (SORNA) of 2006 18 U.S.C.A. 16913 as well as under New York State law, Dave must register.

66. Define and describe an adversary system of justice. What role do the rules of evidence play in such a system? Be sure to provide examples.

ANSWER: In the American adversary system, the prosecutor and the defense attorney assume adversarial roles; that is, they do not seek to establish the facts in cooperation with each other, but in opposition. Each side has two goals: to present the facts most advantageous to their position, and to seek to prevent and make it difficult for their opponent to do the same.

67. What is the Brady rule? Provide an example of a violation of this rule. What are the consequences of a violation of the Brady rule?

ANSWER: The Brady rule requires that a prosecutor has a duty to disclose evidence favorable to an accused upon request, where the evidence is material to guilt or innocence. Where such evidence is in the exclusive possession of the prosecution, it must be disclosed even when there is no request for disclosure by the defense if such evidence is "clearly supportive of a claim of innocence." An example of a violation of the Brady rule would be where the prosecution failed to notify the defense that a key witness was a paid informant. If a Brady violation occurs, the penalty often will be more severe, and could be a new trial or even a complete dismissal of the criminal charges.

69. Delineate and discuss the duties of law enforcement agencies at the local, state and federal levels.

ANSWER: Local law enforcement agencies such as police and sheriff departments enforce city and county ordinances in addition to the criminal laws of their state. They bring their cases to city attorneys and state attorneys (district attorneys) for charging and prosecution. Municipal police officers often spend more time in municipal courts on ordinance violations than they spend in state courts appearing in criminal cases. Federal law enforcement officers work in the many federal law agencies created by Congress. They enforce specific federal laws assigned to their agencies and take most of their cases to federal prosecutors for trial in the federal court system.

71. What is the main function of a jury? Why is this duty imposed on the jury?

ANSWER: The determination of truth is the function of the jury. Because the jury must determine truth based only on the often-conflicting versions presented by the adversaries, however, the system has elaborate rules to control how those versions of the truth are presented. The purpose of the rules of evidence is to ensure each adversary's version of the truth is put before the jury by relevant, reliable, and competent evidence.

ANSWER: In using the alibi defense, a defendant is alleging that he or she physically could not have committed the crime that is charged because the defendant was at another place at the time the crime was committed. Because an alibi can easily be fabricated, it must be carefully investigated. Most states have notice of alibi statutes that require defendants who plan to use an alibi defense to serve notice on the prosecutor before trial.
