- B. They failed to help the Asian countries substantially when they underwent a major financial crisis in the 1990s.
- C. They failed to respect the autonomy of member nations by deeming any bilateral agreements between members as illegal if made without their approval.
- D. They failed to foresee and counter the unintended effects of globalization like pollution, exploitation, and cultural extinction.
- E. They failed to suppress the terrorists who were responsible for the attack in London that coincided with the G8 summit.

The basic complaint against the WTO, IMF, and others is the amalgam of unintended consequences of globalization: environmental concerns, worker exploitation and domestic job losses, cultural extinction, higher oil prices, and diminished sovereignty of nations.

100. Which of the following statements is true about the status of protests against global financial institutions?

- A. Organized protests against global financial institutions have been catching the attention of the world since the establishment of the IMF in 1945.
- B. The sole focus of the anticapitalist protestors has been the environmental impact of globalization and the need for stability.
- C. The "antisweatshop" campaigns by students in America have translated into changes in policy.
- D. The entire gamut of anticapitalist protests have been weak and ineffectual in the face of the tremendous power of global financial institutions.
- E. The protests against global financial institutions have been organized yet nonviolent as a rule.

The protest groups, some of them with responsible intent, have affected policy. For example, "antisweatshop" campaigns, mostly in America and mostly student-led, have had effects beyond college campuses.

Essay Questions

101. Briefly discuss the efforts taken by the United States to promote global trade after World War II.

After World War II, as a means to dampen the spread of communism, the United States set out to infuse the ideal of capitalism throughout as much of the world as possible. The Marshall Plan to assist in rebuilding Europe, financial and industrial development assistance to rebuild Japan, and funds channeled through the Agency for International Development were some of the measures taken by the United States to help strengthen the world economy. With the countries newly freed from colonial powers striving to gain economic independence and the financial assistance offered by the United States, most of the noncommunist world's economies grew, and new markets were created.

The benefits of the foreign economic assistance given by the United States flowed both ways. For every dollar the United States invested in the economic development and rebuilding of other countries after World War II, hundreds of dollars more returned in the form of purchases of U.S. agricultural products, manufactured goods, and services. In short, the United States helped make the world's economies stronger, which enabled them to buy more from us.

102. What is the significance of balance-of-payments figures?

A nation's balance-of-payments statement records all financial transactions between its residents and those of the rest of the world during a given period of time—usually one year. Each of the nation's financial transactions with other countries is reflected in its balance of payments. A nation's balance-of-payments statement presents an overall view of its international economic position and is an important economic measure used by treasuries, central banks, and other government agencies whose responsibility is to maintain external and internal economic stability. A balance of payments represents the difference between receipts from foreign countries on one side and payments to them on the other.

103. Why must the balance-of-payments record always be in balance? What does a balanced record signify?

The system of accounts that records a nation's international financial transactions is called its balance of payments. A balance of payments represents the difference between receipts from foreign countries on one side and payments to them on the other. As the balance-of-payments record is maintained on a double-entry bookkeeping system, it must always be in balance. As on an individual company's financial statement, the assets and liabilities or the credits and debits must offset each other. And like a company's statement, the fact that they balance does not mean a nation is in particularly good or poor financial condition. A balance of payments is a record of condition, not a determinant of condition.

104. Briefly describe the three accounts of a balance-of-payments statement.

A balance-of-payments statement includes three accounts:

- the current account—a record of all merchandise exports, imports, and services plus unilateral transfers of funds;
- the capital account—a record of direct investment, portfolio investment, and short-term capital movements to and from countries; and
- the official reserves account—a record of exports and imports of gold, increases or decreases in foreign exchange, and increases or decreases in liabilities to foreign central banks.

Of the three, the current account is of primary interest to international business.

105. What are the arguments in favor of protectionism? Which of them are generally recognized as valid by economists?

Arguments espoused by protectionists to maintain government restrictions on trade can be classified as follows: (1) protection of an infant industry, (2) protection of the home market, (3) need to keep money at home, (4) encouragement of capital accumulation, (5) maintenance of the standard of living and real wages, (6) conservation of natural resources, (7) industrialization of a low-wage nation, (8) maintenance of employment and reduction of unemployment, (9) national defense, (10) enhancement of business size, and (11) retaliation and bargaining. Economists in general recognize as valid only the arguments regarding infant industry, national defense, and industrialization of underdeveloped countries.

106. List the effects of imposing tariffs.

The following are the effects of imposing tariffs:

- In general, tariffs increase:
 - inflationary pressures.
 - special interests' privileges.
 - government control and political considerations in economic matters.
 - the number of tariffs (they beget other tariffs via reciprocity).
- Tariffs weaken:
 - balance-of-payments positions.
 - supply-and-demand patterns.
 - international relations (they can start trade wars).
- Tariffs restrict:
 - manufacturers' supply sources.
 - choices available to consumers.
 - competition.

107. Describe voluntary export restraints.

The voluntary export restraint (VER) is an agreement between the importing country and the exporting country for a restriction on the volume of exports. They are similar to quotas and also referred to as orderly market agreements (OMAs). A VER is called voluntary because the exporting country sets the limits; however, it is generally imposed under the threat of stiffer quotas and tariffs being set by the importing country if a VER is not established.

108. What are the three areas covered by the Omnibus Trade and Competitiveness Act of 1988 that are considered critical in improving U.S. trade?

The Omnibus Trade and Competitiveness Act of 1988 was designed to deal with trade deficits, protectionism, and the overall fairness of America's trading partners. The bill covers three areas considered critical in improving U.S. trade: market access, export expansion, and import relief.

- Market Access: The issue of the openness of markets for U.S. goods is addressed as market access. The act gives the U.S. president authority to restrict sales of a country's products in the U.S. market if that country imposes unfair restrictions on U.S. products.
- Export Expansion: The trade act recognizes that some problems with U.S. export competitiveness stem from impediments on trade imposed by U.S. regulations and export disincentives. Export controls, the Foreign Corrupt Practices Act (FCPA), and export promotion were specifically addressed in the export expansion section of the act.
- Import Relief: Recognizing that foreign penetration of U.S. markets can cause serious competitive pressure, loss of market share, and, occasionally, severe financial harm, the import relief section of the act provides a menu of remedies for U.S. businesses adversely affected by imports.

109. List the major agreements reached during the Uruguay Round of GATT negotiations. Which was the most notable achievement of the Uruguay Round?

An important objective of the United States in the Uruguay Round was to reduce or eliminate barriers to international trade in services.

- The General Agreement on Trade in Services (GATS) was the first multilateral, legally enforceable agreement covering trade and investment in the services sector. It provides a legal basis for future negotiations aimed at eliminating barriers that discriminate against foreign services and deny them market access.
- Trade-Related Investment Measures (TRIMs) established the basic principle that investment restrictions can be major trade barriers and therefore are included, for the first time, under GATT procedures.
- Another objective of the United States for the Uruguay Round was achieved by an agreement on Trade-Related Aspects of Intellectual Property Rights (TRIPs). The TRIPs agreement establishes substantially higher standards of protection for a full range of intellectual property rights than are embodied in current international agreements, and it provides for the effective enforcement of those standards both internally and at the border.
- Perhaps the most notable achievement of the Uruguay Round was the creation of a new institution as a successor to the GATT—the World Trade Organization.

110. Why was the International Monetary Fund (IMF) formed? How does the IMF deal with universally floating rates?

Inadequate monetary reserves and unstable currencies are particularly vexing problems in global trade. To overcome these particular market barriers that plagued international trading before World War II, the International Monetary Fund (IMF) was formed. Originally 29 countries signed the agreement; now 188 countries are members.

To cope with universally floating exchange rates, the IMF developed special drawing rights (SDRs). The SDR is in effect paper gold and represents an average base of value derived from the value of a group of major currencies. Rather than being denominated in the currency of any given country, trade contracts are frequently written in SDRs because they are much less susceptible to exchange-rate fluctuations.
